A Hundred Years Ago Today

In a lonely Kentucky cabin, one cold and wintry night, unto an humble pair, there came a child, to greatness born. Amidst surroundings profound and solitary he grew up to man's estate, and, in power and strength of body, developed the full flower of his individuality.

In due time the world acclaimed him the greatest American since Washington, and the greatest and most heroic exponent of Human Liberty that has trod the earth for two thousand years.

In the days of his young manhood there was alarm and terror in the land, and frightful domination. At twenty, on the Mississippi's lonely bosom, he toiled at the oar for bread. At twenty-five he was a pioneer chief and a captain in the Black Hawk war. At twenty-five he was a rising young legislator—at twenty-six he was an eloquent lawyer defending the cause of the weak and the oppressed. At thirty-seven he became a Congressman.

Then came the war, and he stepped by step he rose to place and power, until at last in the government of a vast republic and in the affections of all mankind he stood alone and absolute.

If over there, lived beneath the shales a Christian hero of sincere and profound piety, a true champion of the Lord of Hosts, it was ABRAHAM LINCOLN. He spoke softly, he thought fearlessly, but like fire flamed his heart.

To the cause of the great Common People he gave limitless allegiance, and nothing made him more indignant than legislative tyranny or usurpation of any kind. "He disliked summary laws and would not prescribe by statute what other men should eat and drink."

Upon a famous occasion he declared: "When the white man governs himself, that is self government, but when he governs himself and also another man, that is more than self government—that is DESPOTISM."

Again, when fellow legislators attempted to impose the Maine Liquor Law upon the young State of Illinois, he arose (Dec. 1849) "like Saul among the prophets" and tabled a motion which led to its defeat and final extinction by a sweeping vote of 75 to 8.

Read—and then Figure It's Worth While

The story is short. The figuring is simple subtraction. The answer is a material saving. In this "Expediency Sale" which follows stock-taking, we are offering all the small lots of Men's Suits, Overcoats and Rain Coats at reductions in price that are so radical as to be intensely interesting—especially so when you take into account the unquestioned superiority of the garments involved. That's the main thing—and that's what gives such force to these prices—and makes this the sale of all sales during the season.
